The fabled amazons of old time are coming to life and reality. That division of young Russian women in arms is no joke. They are killing and capturing as well as getting themselves killed. It is related that two German officers and 100 men taken by the Legion of Death were "utterly amazed and chagrined" when they found that their captors were women. Perhaps the woman-warriors enjoyed the mortification of their prizes as much as the capture itself.

The final end of a few lingering horse-cars in Manhattan gives opportunity to Philadelphia, long described by the metropolis as a country town, to hit back with the announcement of its newspapers that "New York is becoming a modern city."

Holand complains of being between the devil and the deep sea, but she can at least join in the fight against the devil. That would be more sensible than indulging in useless tears over the American embargo.

War Planes and Weapons on View At Kentucky's Great State Fair

Remarkable Features of Festal Week Secured by Energy and Enterprise of Hard Working Fair Officials

HON. MAT S. COHEN,
President Kentucky State Fair.
FOUNT T. KREMER,
Secretary Kentucky State Fair.

THE Kentucky State Fair belongs to the people, is of the people and for the people, but credit for this great achievement, which during a period of fourteen years has meant much to the commonwealth at large and which now bears vital relation to the welfare of the state, belongs in fullest measure to two officials, the commissioner of agriculture and the State Fair secretary.

Upon the shoulders of these two men falls the burden of responsibility for the gigantic undertaking of summing up in one festal week the agricultural and live stock industries, accomplishments and achievements of the entire state for the year, and both must be possessor of abilities beyond the ordinary measure of man.

Commissioner Cohen's Fine Record.
Commissioner of Agriculture Mat S. Cohen steps into the arena of State Fair accomplishment this year with the pulse and assurance of a prior year's unequalled and universally applauded success in the handling of his colossal task and with the pre-eminent satisfaction of knowing that he has succeeded in adding to the fifteenth annual Kentucky State Fair, to be held in Louisville the week of Sept. 10, the most remarkable features ever associated with a State Fair. Spectacular among his accomplishments is the securing of the $10,000 stake for five gilded saddle horses and the unprecedented increase to $1,000 in premiums for county exhibits. Both these brilliant feats are in direct line with the appeal of the Washington government for a stimulation and increased activity in stock raising and food production and followed his several consultations at Washington with national bodies in regard to keying up the state to its highest point of output both in food as well as stock. From these meetings resulted the government's decision to get behind the State Fair with exhibits which will double its already mammoth list of attractions.

Of keenest interest to the public in general will doubtless be the governmental showing on manikins of the arms, uniforms and paraphernalia of all the nations now engaged in the great European war, together with war planes and weapons of destruction. Government officers say that the country has been combed for cavalry and artillery horses, and Commissioner Cohen's great plan and splendid achievement in securing for the State Fair the $10,000 stake, as announced, comes at a psychological time and is expected to have a saving stimulus on the horse breeding industry of the state.

In contrast to the country wide scope of the commissioner's activities may be cited the fact that he has likewise brought the interests of the State Fair to an intensive point by placing each county agent on the advisory board of the fair and thus securing the personal, individual and enthusiastic support of every Kentucky county as a unit.

Kremer an Efficient Secretary.
Fontaine T. Kremer, who was elected Kentucky State Fair secretary at the beginning of the present year upon the lamented death of former Secretary W. J. Gooch, while newly vested with secretarial title and dignities, is by no means a novice in secretarial experience, having been the "power behind" preceding Kentucky State Fair secretaries for the past eight years in the comparatively inconspicuous but immensely important post of active manager and director of finances for the entire vast institution.

To the lay mind the magnitude of this undertaking is impossible of conception, and only those concerned in the making of detail, infinitude of demands and urgency of action swirling around the operative forces of the fair can grasp the significance of this experience. As no man occupies a distinctive position without a training which has consciously or unconsciously fitted him for the duties of his post, so Mr. Kremer's entire career has been one of preparation for the brilliant and efficient handling of the task before him. In his early manhood he saw long service in important positions with the Louisville and Nashville railroad general offices and with the law and equity division of the Jefferson circuit court, thereby absorbing a grasp of detail, knowledge of law and familiarity with finance which grounded him well in knowledge vital to the handling of the fair. In fact, it was this unusual all round ability, demonstrated year after year to the state board of agriculture, that prompted Mr. Kremer's election by the board as secretary to the fair. To the agricultural element his selection was eminently satisfying from the fact that Mr. Kremer has been a practical farmer for the past twelve years, owning and at present residing upon and actively operating at Shively, Ky., one of the prettiest and most prosperous farms in the state.

BIG CANYONS OF SEQUOIA

Tehquite Valley and Kings River Canyon May Be Included in National Park—Greater Sequoia Project.

The demand for what is popularly known as "the Greater Sequoia National Park" is rapidly growing. Several of the larger mountain-climbing and outdoor clubs have become enthusiastic for it, and inquiries of the Department of the Interior concerning the magnificent country north and east of the present Sequoia National Park are increasing.

The fact that America possesses an area of unsurpassed scenic magnificence heretofore unsuspected by the public has become generally known only recently. Mount Whitney, the highest peak in the United States, has been only a name and an altitude. The Tehquite Valley and the Kings River Canyon have been scarcely known even as names. The Kern River Canyon is hardly known to California.

The fact that all of these represent the public, each of its own kind, interests the public, and the project to join, in one national park of sixteen hundred square miles, the maximum of mountain top and canyon scenery with the maximum of forest luxuriance as represented in the present Sequoia National Park has caught the national fancy. In several respects the Greater Sequoia, when it becomes a national park, will be unique.

Two of these great canyons, the Tehquite Valley and the Kings River Canyon, may properly be classed with the Yosemite Valley. Not that they resemble or repeat the Yosemite or each other; each is highly individual and different. But they all have much in common, including a largeness, a personality and a quality that set them apart from all other of the "many Yosemites" which John Muir ascribes to the Sierra Nevada Mountains.

Tehquite Valley and Its Dome
Each of these canyons, like the Yosemite Valley is overlooked by granite rocks of great height and marked personality. The Tehquite Dome guardian the Tehquite Valley on the north, is even loftier than El Capitan of the Yosemite; while Mount Harrington, directly opposite, rises nearly two thousand feet higher than Half Dome rises above the Yosemite Valley's eastern end. In the Kings River Canyon, North Dome and the Grand Sentinel are heights of commanding grandeur.

Tehquite Dome is a true Yosemite feature. It points its granite finger at the zenith. It is not so massive as El Capitan, and to that extent is less impressive; but it is superb. It has its own august personality, and, if it stood in the Yosemite, would share with those famous rocks the incom-
